

CS221 - Group Project 05: Minutes of Meetings

Version: 1.1

Meeting Details

Reason: Priorities and User Interactive Overview

Date: 16th October 2012

Time: 13:10 - 14:00

Location: C55

Attendees: Edward, Jacob, Sam, Ivan, Chris, Kit, Ollie, Rich

Apologies: N/A

Minute Taker: Sam Morrison

Matters Arising

1. Carrying on discussion from the last meeting about the choice to use serialization rather than MySQL, Jacob still felt confident that serialization is the better option of the two. He feels it will be as efficient (in terms of expanding it) as MySQL, which some members of the group wasn't too sure about.
2. After a group conversation about UML diagrams, we found out that we are missing a step before - a design plan for the user interface (what the UI will look like (briefly) and what any features, such as buttons, will do once pressed). The UI needs to be a comfortable choice from the group.
3. Kit suggested having a flow chart to show, for instance, a user hitting the "home" button and to show what the UI will look like afterwards. We decided it was wise to get the text based UI documented and then design and add the graphics once we have the requirements. The group will now focus on the UI design instead of having part of the group do UML diagrams and the other UI design - the UML diagrams will turn out to be easier once we have the UI designed.
4. An overlook of the UI page design has been created which shows the pages linking with each other (e.g. the Log in page will have a button that will navigate the user to the Sign Up page to which the user can then go back to the log in page and log in - or go back to the home page).

New Business

1. Chris and Rich have said that they will look into Gantt charts.
2. Our group have agreed to use Git as version management control. Each user must create a GitHub account and let Jacob (jas32@aber.ac.uk) know what your username is.

Action: all

Any Other Business

1. It has been reminded that anything formal should be sent to Rhys Parry (rrp@aber.ac.uk). Sam will e-mail the previous (and future) meeting minutes to Rhys before 6am 18th October 2012.

Action: sjm16
